

DR. BRENDAN MYERS

“...one of the most important neopagan voices now alive” - Isaac Bonewits

In the Beginning was the Word

Pagan Folk Proverbs and Wisdom Teachings
(and circle songs!)

Suggested Donation: $5 or non-perishable food items

Members of the Unitarian Church of Calgary Free

When: Sept 19, 2008 7:30pm

Where: Unitarian Church of Calgary
1703 1st St. N.W.,

Many Pagans often claim that their spiritual inspiration comes not from a written scripture but from personal experience and original creativity. There are also many written works which constitute Pagan's "testament", or its central literary expressions of spiritual identity. Join Dr. Myers as he explores some of these works and offers some of his own philosophical commentary and interpretation. Based upon his upcoming book "A Pagan Testament"

Co-Sponsored by the Unitarian Church of Calgary

“...an essential book on any covens bookshelf.” - Janet Farrar and Gavin Bone

“This is one of the most important books you can read...let the book deepen your soul and broaden your understanding.” - Phillip Carr-Gomm

Many of the Virtues portrayed in Celtic and European Mythology as found in ancient heroic epics and sagas like Beowulf, the Iliad and Odyssey, the Eddas, and the Táin Bo Cuailnge, are ethical ideals. This way of thinking about ethics is known in contemporary philosophy as 'Areteology', or 'Virtue'. Many of these important virtues, such as honour, integrity, inspiration, strength, courage, and so on, are not only categories of ethics. They are also categories of aesthetics. They are valued not just because they are right and good; but also because they are beautiful. In this Lecture prepared for the OBOD Mount Haemus lecture series Dr. Myers' explores this overlap between the aesthetic and the ethical, and shows how Celtic & European spirituality is particularly well positioned to embody a meeting place between the ethical and the aesthetic, the beautiful and the good.

All Attendants are Welcome in Joining Us Celebrate Mabon At 7:00pm

How Beautiful They Are

Ethics in Celtic and European Mythology

Open to Everyone

Suggested Donation: $5 or non-perishable food items

When: Sept 20, 2008 3:00pm

Where: Unitarian Church of Calgary

1703 1st St. N.W.,

For Updates and Further information visit COGCOA online at <http://www.cogcoa.ab.ca/> or http://groups.yahoo.com/group/cogcoa_public

For More Information on Dr. Brendan Myers and his work visit <http://www.wildideas.net/cathbad/>

Sponsored by
Covenant of Gaia Church of Alberta

